

Campaigning Down To Bare Knuckles; It'll Get Rougher

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The gloves are off in the presidential campaign.

The fighting is down to bare knuckles, and the prospects are that both candidates will be battered considerably before the decision is reached Nov. 4.

It's a fight in which the voters are the only referee. It will be up to them to decide who lands the most telling blows. And it might be well, while they are about it, to judge this as a prize fight is judged: to penalize with the loss of the round anyone who lands a low blow.

This campaign started off pleasantly enough. Nice fellow, the general. Fine man, the governor.

But gradually the tone has become sharper, the words blunter, until this week each side has used the same word to describe the other's tactics:

Smear.

President Truman said of the Republicans:

"They are engaging in the greatest smear campaign this year that we have ever seen in American politics."

In the same speech, Truman lit into a remark Dwight D. Eisenhower made to Congress back in 1945. Eisenhower said: "Nothing guides Russian policy so much as a desire for friendship with the United States."

"His advice carried great weight and it therefore did a great deal of harm," Truman said. "Perhaps if he had given us better advice in 1945, we wouldn't have had so much trouble in waking up the country to the danger of Communist imperialism in 1946 and 1947 and 1948."

The Republican reply, by Sen. Richard Nixon: "The most vicious smear in history."

And Nixon snorted:

"Why, that piano-playing letter writer!"

Perhaps Eisenhower's strongest words have been:

"We have an administration which may go down in history as the 'scandal - a - day administration.'"

Instead of using the short punch, Adlai Stevenson usually has relied on the short punch-line. Such as:

"If the Republicans will stop telling lies about us, we will stop telling the truth about them."

Stevenson used the word "bunk" to describe Republican campaign talk. He said:

"I think the carefully cultivated legend that all Democrats are wasters and all Republicans economical is bunk."

The prospects? The going will probably be rougher.

For instance, here are quotations taken from talks just the last day or two:

Truman-Eisenhower "has fallen in with a pretty bad crowd. He is in Taft's pocket and Taft is telling him what to do. I am afraid he will wreck our foreign policy and the peace of the world."

Taking another stab at the Republican "reactionary Old Guard," the President said Eisenhower was making "this irresponsible bid for votes" because to get the support of the Ohio senator he defeated for the GOP nomination, "he has to swallow the Taft foreign policy, hook, line and sinker."

"I am dismayed and disheartened that a man whom we all once

Contributions for New Park Now over Half Way to Goal

HERE IS JUST ONE OF THE MANY GOOD LIVES to which the new public park here is being put. Boys can't get in much trouble in wholesome outdoor play like this. The above picture was snapped by Record-Herald photographer Don Bandy Friday evening when he just happened to be going down Millikan Avenue with his camera handy. The park, when the long-range development is completed will provide recreation areas for just such as this.

The first ten days of the campaign to raise funds for stepping up the development of the new public park along Millikan Avenue have brought in $2,390.50, but, while encouraging, that is only a real good start toward the goal of $4,000 to $5,000 set by the city Recreation Commission, which has shouldered the responsibility of carrying out the long range program.

The first report on the progress of the fund-raising effort has just been made by Don Murdoch, who is serving as the chairman of the campaign.

The report showed that the $2,390.50 raised in the first ten days came from 86 contributors.

Murdoch said that while the big contributions were "necessary" to the success of the effort, the small contributions had made the committee and the Recreation Commission happy for two different reasons: (1) They give more people the feeling of having a part in a civic development and (2) Often the small contributions represent a greater sacrifice than the big ones and, thus, mean a sincere interest in community betterment at all levels.

"We all would like to see five thousand $1 contributions," he said and added "but we know that is too much to expect."

THE ENTHUSIASM for the small contributions, however, did not overshadow the committee's appreciation of the big ones. On the list, there were eight contributions of $100 each or more. There was one for $500.

The committee chairman said "that is evidence that people and firms successful enough to be in a position to make sizeable contributions realize how much a development such as this means to a community in the way of progress and better living."

How much longer the fund-raising would continue, Murdoch did not say. But he did point out that "there are six or eight" business places and individuals from whom sizeable contributions logically can be expected before long.

That was part of the reason for his optimism and confidence that the goal would be reached. Another was the spirit in which the contributions were made.

Murdoch said the committeemen had reported that nearly everyone approached had expressed regret that the contribution could not be bigger. Many of the contributions came in voluntarily before contacts were made by the committeemen.

THE CHAIRMAN said any contributions, large or small, could be left at the Willis Insurance Agency office on North Fayette Street. Incidentally, the landscape architect's drawing of the long-range park for the development of the park is still in the office window.

These are the contributions the committee and Recreation Commission want because the park development was set up as a project by and for the people, as something that would stand as a monument to civic spirit. It is to be carried out over the years with contributions of money, time and materials; no use of tax money is contemplated.

More contributions are expected to start coming in now as the result of the 175 letters that were sent out about a week ago. Replies have been received from a dozen already.

Revamping Of Joint Chiefs Urged For Better Planning

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Rep. Bonner (D-N.C.) Friday called for revamping the Joint Chiefs of Staff to eliminate what he called a bottleneck in military planning.

The top military officials, he said, are unable to function adequately because they are both partisans and judges in interservice rivalries.

Bonner suggested that the chairman of the Joint Chiefs be given authority to decide controversial issues and that other members be made military advisers rather than policy representatives of their services.

The Joint Chiefs are the top Army, Air Force and Navy officers who, under Gen. Omar Bradley as chairman, advise the President on major military problems.

The chairman now is "voteless and is armed only with the power of persuasion" to guide the "old pros who run the Department of Defense," Bonner said.

BONNER'S statement accompanied the last of several hearing reports on military supply problems released by a House expenditures subcommittee which he heads.

Secretary of Defense Lovett testified last June, Bonner said, that the law unifying the armed services is inadequate and he will recommend changes before leaving office this year.

"For one thing," Bonner said, "I hope he makes recommendations to change the two-hat make-up of the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

Lovett was asked Thursday night about Bonner's statement. The secretary, just back from an inspection visit to military installations in the West and Southwest, had not seen the statement.

He said he told the committee last summer that he would refer any recommendations to President Truman, but indicated he has not yet done so.

Britain Fires Her First Atomic Bomb

Jar Felt 65 Miles: Churchill Said Ready To Dicker With U.S.

PERTH, Australia, Oct. 3.—Britain exploded her first atomic weapon successfully Friday at the deserted Monte Bello Islands off Northwest Australia. A London newspaper said it gives Prime Minister Churchill the "trump" he needs to reopen exchange of atom secrets with the United States.

The "setting sun" flash and boiling atomic cloud, seen 65 and more miles away on the mainland, heralded Britain's "coming of age" as the third world power to possess a deadly atomic weapon. It was the world's 37th recorded atomic explosion.

The United States has exploded 33 atomic weapons—two of them in World War II over Japan and the rest in tests—and so far as is known there have been three atomic explosions in Russia.

Dispatches received here at the state capital of Western Australia said the British weapon went off at 8 A. M. Friday (7 P. M., Thursday, EST). Deepest secrecy shrouded the nature of the weapon.

Reporters who saw the blast from a 3,000-foot lookout on the mainland, 65 miles from the center of the restricted test area, said the initial orange-red flash was far less intense than had been expected.

THERE WAS speculation that this was because British scientists had devised a new detonating trigger which did not require as much fissionable material.

The observers heard two distinct explosions — one presumably the priming charge and the second the main blast. A huge atomic cloud billowed up to 6,000 feet in the first minute and was at 12,000 feet four minutes later.

It was not in the mushroom shape so familiar in pictures of American atomic explosions, but boiled up into a ragged Z-shape at the top, and wide at the bottom.

With the roaring thunder of the blast came a heavy pressure of air that hurt the ears of those on the mainland.

Minutes after the blast the Admiralty's coded message that the test was a success flashed from the flagship Campania, which was among the five British and 11 Australian ships taking part.

British morning newspapers hurriedly recast their front pages to splash the news that Britain at last had reached her first goal in her 4½ years of lone-wolf effort to catch up in the atom race.

The London News Chronicle said Prime Minister Churchill was thinking not only of military security when he imposed an edict of absolute secrecy over the test.

"He believes Britain knows a trick or two which the Americans would like to know. He wants to use it as a trump card in Washington to settle a long-standing grievance," the paper said.

Two Candles To Burn In Honoring Pair

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 3.—Two candles will be lighted Saturday night at a corner table in one of Savannah's eating places. A sign will mark two seats as "reserved" but they will not be occupied.

The candles will be a memorial to a love story.

Two years ago Saturday, Logan and Mary Roe sat at the table. They had been married that day. Much of their courtship had been conducted at the same table in the light of flickering candles.

A few months ago Mary died— a victim of cancer. Roe, a merchant mariner, applied for sea duty.

Wednesday night he telephoned the restaurant from New York. A letter he had just mailed contained a $5 bill. He said:

"I'm on a transport that is putting to sea in the morning, but I want to reserve our table for our anniversary Saturday night. The bill will cover any expenses involved."

Their table will be reserved and the candles lighted. The $5 bill will go to the church where they were both members.

Third Series Tilt Bottled Up By Tie

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A capacity crowd Friday afternoon was on hand in Yankee Stadium—the "House that Ruth built"—watching the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees locked in a scoreless tie in the first inning of the third game of the World Series. Each team has won one.

Starting pitchers were two southpaws—Preacher Roe (11-2) for Brooklyn and Eddie Lopat (10-5) for the Yankees.

The New York Yankees entered the third game of the World Series Friday as the 2 to 1 choice to win the 1952 baseball classic over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It was a beautiful dream the Dodgers had while it lasted, but

Ohio Hearing Pair Of Top Politicians

Stevenson And Taft Are Both Wooing Voters In Buckeye State

COLUMBUS, Oct. 3.—Ohio is getting a closeup look at two major spokesmen in the presidential campaign—Adlai Stevenson, Democratic candidate, and Sen. Robert Taft, chief bush-beater for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the Republican nominee.

Both Stevenson and Taft were appearing in the Buckeye State. Stevenson chose Taft's hometown of Cincinnati Friday to accuse the Ohio senator and the Republican "Old Guard" of fostering a new isolationism that could lead to "national tragedy."

He took back-handed slaps at Taft, through use of the old guard device, but he said that "at least you know where Sen. Taft stands and what he thinks about most things, which is more than I can say for the general."

Stevenson was making his first campaign appearance in Ohio, a state with 25 key electoral votes that turned up in the Democratic column in 1948.

His schedule calls for a major speech Friday night in Columbus dealing with the welfare of the people after 20 years of Democratic administrations.

AS A PRELUDE to the Columbus speech, the Democratic nominee said in his Cincinnati talk that the Republican Old Guard sees Uncle Sam on his last legs with the handwriting on the wall showing bankruptcy, socialism and vigorous country in all history.

"They are entitled to their nightmares," Stevenson said. "And we are entitled to our dreams. We know that we live in the happiest, most prosperous and vigorous country in all history."

After recommending to Ohio voters the candidacies of Frank Lausche for another term as governor and former Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle for the Senate, the Illinois governor gave over most of his speech to the isolationism. He said:

"I respect the general and honor him for his military services and for the part he has played in the past in executing our bipartisan foreign policy. But every day that passes shows more clearly that the same Old Guard is in control."

Taft said Thursday night in Columbus that Stevenson, if elected President, would permit the greatest threat to this nation to continue. That threat was created by "stupidity and pro - Communist sympathies in the State Department," Taft asserted.

The senator described Stevenson as "hand in glove" with President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson on foreign policy.

"At the end of the war, we stood at the height of power," Taft said.

"TRUMAN was the most wonderful man. But our people failed to understand the nature of Communism. Today we face the greatest threat ever—far greater than Hitler." He said "Stevenson would continue that threat."

But Taft said the Republican presidential nominee, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, would clean out the top level in the State Department, including Acheson.

In his 35-minute speech, Taft listed the three major issues of the campaign as: (a) corruption in government; (b) socialization; and (c) mismanagement of foreign affairs and the Korean war.

2,271 Face Draft Call In November

COLUMBUS, Oct. 3.—State Selective Service headquarters Friday issued an induction call for 2,271 men for Ohio in November.

The October call was for 2,264 men. The record high for any month was in January when 4,903 were called up, low was 558 in June.

The call by counties includes: Clinton 8, Fayette 6, Hocking 6, Pickaway 8, Van Wert 10.

Justice Chief Eyes Hoodlums, Subversives

Names Like Costello, Chaplin Ticketed For Ouster From America

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—A Justice Department blueprint for deporting scores of underworld hoodlums, subversives and other undesirables was taken off the drawing boards Friday and put into action.

Some 100 such persons, according to an estimate by Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery, were ticketed for expulsion from the United States.

McGranery said that proceedings looking toward exclusion orders have been started in the last week against a half dozen "figures in the underworld and organized crime."

Some, he said, have records dating back to the bootleg era of the 1920s and the gangland days of Al Capone's Chicago mob.

His goal, McGranery said, is "to restore the dignity of citizenship" in the United States and strike at "the roots of organized crime in America."

THE PROGRAM, McGranery said, also covers Communists who got American citizenship by fraudulent concealments, and "the unsavory characters who have continued to be aliens technically as well as in the broader sense."

Justice Department officials said that, in addition to the cases already inaugurated, including a proceeding to strip gambler Frank Costello of his citizenship and deport him, a large batch of other expulsion pickups are "in the works." Numerous additional arrests within the next few weeks were indicated.

McGranery disclaimed any political implications in his announced program, saying it was something he had had in mind for a long time—in some cases since before he became attorney general last May.

McGranery was asked why so many alien or naturalized hoodlums had operated for years without any effort being made to deport them.

The attorney general replied, "Some of them have controlled political machines." But he declined to say whether such machines were Republican or Democratic.

In a formal statement about his exclusion program, McGranery mentioned in the same paragraph Frank Costello, ticketed for denaturalization and eventual deportation, and comedian Charles Chaplin, British subject who has had a 40-year multimillion-dollar movie career in this country.

Chaplin's private life has included four marriages and a 1944 indictment under the Mann Act, which forbids transportation of a woman across a state line for immoral purposes. He was acquitted.

Chaplin, now 63, went to Europe on a visit last month. The Justice Department announced that, when he seeks re-entry, he will be subjected to a detailed Immigration Service examination to determine if he is eligible for re-admission.

Short-Nosed Hoss Jails Money Thief

LONG BEACH, Calif., Oct. 3.—A horse could have made a technically honest man of Stephen O. Moore who Friday began a one year jail sentence for taking $50,000 from a finance company he managed.

Moore, 31, bet $2,000 on a 25-to-1 shot to win. His horse was right in there at the finish but a photo showed he was nosed out. If he had won his bet, Moore mused, he could have reimbursed his company and had $2,000 to spare.

DT&I Commuter Proposal Given Cool Reception

Plan Impractical
Railroad President
Writes Winegardner

A proposal that commuter service between Fayette County stations and the new atomic energy plant near Waverly by the DT&I Railroad might help solve the transportation problem for workers outside the immediate plant area has been given a cool reception by the railroad company.

S. P. Ruddiman, president of the DT&I, has written Reed M. Winegardner, who made the suggestion, that the company officials "are convinced that it is not a practicable project."

Winegardner, a Washington C. H. attorney and consultant of the federal Civilian Defense Administration, proposed the DT&I commuter service after working out a comprehensive plan for dispersing the plant workers over half a dozen counties in the general area of the AEC project. Fayette County was one of the counties and under Winegardner's dispersal plan something like 2,500 workers would make their homes in the county's villages and Washington C. H.

The dispersal plan, he said, was designed to provide better schools, churches, housing, utilities and the like for the workers and at the same time relieve the immediate area around the plant site of the burden of providing them.

THE DT&I president wrote Winegardner regarding his commuter proposal:

"We have given consideration to your letter of September 13 regarding establishment of commuter service on the DT&I between Jeffersonville and a point close to the new Atomic Energy Commission's gaseous diffusion plant near Pike-ton. We are convinced that it is not a practicable project.

"As you know, commuter service is notoriously unprofitable. We would have to acquire cars for this purpose. The time at which construction workers start work and quit is so varied, particularly on plants of this kind where much overtime is involved, that service would have to be provided practically continuously to accommodate the workers. Many of the construction men will prefer to drive their own automobiles. We would have to discharge commuters at Waverly or Givens, both of which are five or six miles by highway from the location where the buildings will be constructed. When passenger service is once established, it is almost impossible to discontinue it.

"Every indication points to the fact that whatever public transportation is required from Jeffersonville, Washington Court House and Good Hope to the Portsmouth project should be accomplished by bus."

WINEGARDNER was preparing to go to Waverly where he said he expected to take up some of the civilian defense aspects of the establishment of the atomic plant with AEC officials at conference during the weekend.

Before he left, he gave no indication of his reaction to the DT&I cold shoulder turned on the commuter proposal; he did not say whether he intended to pursue the question further.

In his letter to the DT&I president, Winegardner wrote:

"The citizens of Fayette County, including residents of Jeffersonville, Washington C. H. and Good Hope, are extremely interested in knowing if it will be possible for the Detroit, Toledo and Iron-ton Railroad Company, to provide commuter railway passenger service, between here and the new Atomic Energy Plant to be constructed near Pike-ton, Ohio.

"It is my understanding that your Railroad Right-of-way passes within two miles of the AEC site. With connecting bus arrangements being provided, for distribution of the personnel over the plant site, with your railroad, it seems to me that one of the most important and vital problems in connection with the setting up and operation of this whole project could be solved, and that is the transportation problem of getting a part of the 25,000 to 30,000 of these con-

Big Changes Are Looming In Highways

Ohio Roads Are 30 Years Behind Times, Says Director

There are many highways in Fayette County which are due to undergo extensive changes as the years go by, and lose some of their unnecessary curves and appearance generally.

The tendency is to straighten out main roads and shorten the distance as much as possible, and this will be done more and more as time goes by, it is predicted by those who have studied the situation. Wider roads are also looming as traffic grows.

The impending changes are in line with a recent statement made by Highway Director S. C. Litzell, that "Ohioans are running 1952 model automobiles on 1920 model roads."

This statement was contained in a speech given at the dedication of the new highway just completed north of Dublin, where seven dangerous curves were eliminated by a relocation project.

Litzell went on to say that Ohio's road ills are further complicated by statutory regulations which haven't been overhauled since 1921 and that Ohio will never catch up on highway needs at the rate we are being forced to travel by legislative obstacles.

The Highway Department has the plans but not the money to finance them, so many of the projects that are being delayed are projects that are urgently needed to eliminate traffic congestion in areas throughout the state.

The Department's Bureau of Location and Design expects to have plans for nearly a 150 million dollars worth of work by December. These will have to be put on the shelf unless new money is provided by the next legislature to put these plans into working projects.

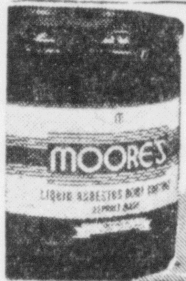

In closing, Litzell said, "the only thing that is keeping Ohio from having as modern a highway system as there is in the country is adequate funds, and an up-to-date legislation."

Check On Bricker Spending Sought

TOLEDO, Oct. 3.—(P)—The campaign headquarters of Michael V. DiSalle says the Senate committee investigating election activities has been asked to keep a running account of campaign expenses of DiSalle's Republican opponent, John W. Bricker.

Eugene Corbets, publicity and research director for DiSalle, said it had been observed some of Sen. Bricker's radio and television programs are financed by the state GOP organization and not the senator's own campaign committee, and as such would not appear on his list of campaign expenditures.

Dark Dangers Are Stressed

Pedestrians Urged To Exercise Care

"Pedestrians should be afraid of the dark."

This statement was made Friday by Police Chief Vaiden Long, in pointing out the increase in pedestrian traffic fatalities as the hours of darkness lengthen.

The fact that a driver cannot see a pedestrian as well at night or at dusk as he can in daylight does not excuse the pedestrian from accepting personal responsibility for his own safety.

As a precaution against the traffic hazards that are caused by darkness, Chief Long urged pedestrians to:

"Remember, a driver can't see you as soon as you can see the bright lights of his car.

"Remember, it's extremely difficult to estimate the speed of an approaching car by its lights. When there is any doubt wait at the curb. . . the few seconds wait may mean the difference between life and death to the pedestrian.

"Avoid walking on roads without sidewalks if possible. If you must walk where there is no sidewalk, walk on the left shoulder. "Be safe, be seen. When walking along a dark road at night, wear light clothing or carry something white to increase your visibility to the motorists.

"Whenever possible, always cross at intersections, and at night try to cross only at lighted intersections.

"To be alive tomorrow," Chief Long emphasized, "stay alert to-night!"

Ohio To Vote On Need For Convention

Pros And Cons Given On Making Revisions In State Constitution

By REED SMITH
AP Political Writer

COLUMBUS, Oct. 3.—(P)—Every 20 years Ohio voters have a chance to say if they want a convention to consider changing their state constitution.

Each voter at the polls Nov. 4 will receive a ballot asking this question: "shall there be a convention to revise, alter, or amend the constitution?"

Ballots will contain spaces to mark "yes" or "no" answers. If a majority of Ohio voters call for it, the convention will be held. The state legislature then will set the time and place for the convention and provide for election of delegates.

If a majority of Ohioans vote "no," the question won't appear on the ballot for another 20 years, unless the legislature submits it to the voters.

Once approved a convention can propose amendments or a brand new constitution.

BUT WHATEVER it calls for, voters at the polls will have a final say on adoption or rejection of all convention proposals. Here's why.

The constitution, upon which the government of Ohio is founded says: "All political power is inherent in the people. Government is instituted for their equal protection and benefit, and they have the right to alter, reform or abolish the same, whenever they may deem it necessary."

A committee of the Ohio Program Commission, a planning body created by the legislature to study problems, drafted "pro and con" arguments on a convention call for this year.

The committee emphasized it neither recommended nor disapproved a convention. Members said they gave arguments for and against a convention only to help voters form their own decisions.

The arguments on both sides of the question:

1. Ohio's century-old constitution, often amended, should be reviewed as a whole by a representative body to see if it adequately serves its purpose.

1A. Convention is proved as a safety valve to which the people may resort when there is extreme need for substantial change in our fundamental law . . . This need does not now exist.

2. The constitution contains obsolete provisions and ambiguous language and needs a complete revision.

2A. GENERAL revision of the constitution in form, language and arrangement is neither necessary nor desirable. They may result in unforeseen changes in the substance of the provisions which may prove unpopular.

3. Voters should decide on specific changes such as revision of the judicial system, re-definition of local home rule powers, four-year terms for the governor and other elected state officials, and more equitable representation in the General Assembly.

3A. Any needed specific amendments can be submitted to a vote of the people by less costly methods.

4. A Series of amendments submitted by a convention would make people aware of their nature and of the constitution to a degree not otherwise possible.

4A. The convention process is not the most desirable method to effect constitutional changes. Delegates are chosen on a non-partisan basis and are not politically responsible for the proposals they make. Various pressure groups will try to get any and all kinds of proposals on the ballot. The submission of too many changes at the same time causes confusion in the minds of voters.

5. The cost of a constitutional convention should not exceed the cost of a session of the General Assembly. . . . about $800,000.

5A. Convention would be expensive; the state has more urgent uses for the limited funds at its disposal.

Opponents of a convention claim it would cost $1 million plus.

Motor Car Drivers Warned by Auto Clubs

Most of us, often while in our motor cars driving along highways, have the friendly impulse to pick up a hitchhiker, especially if he seems friendly and smiling.

Auto clubs over the country have been warning motorists against giving way to this humanitarian inclination, which some regard merely as a courteous gesture, if the person picked up is not well known to the driver.

Back of this warning is the sensible suggestion that danger lurks along the roadside in the persons of some hitchhikers; that the average driver who does not know such persons would be better off to suppress his desire to give the average "thumper" a ride.

Burglar gangs have been revealed to be putting their more personable members on the highways to try to get rides in expensive cars. Information elicited from the drivers often results in the looting of an unguarded house.

Sometimes the decoy is a woman of respectable appearance seated along the highway as if exhausted. She accepts no invitation for a lift until a fine car stops. A glib conversationalist, she obtains all the information she needs. She sends this to confederates, and another burglary makes the headlines.

Police records show crimes of violence by hitchhikers are increasing in number and brutality. Often these shocking crimes are committed by innocent-appearing wayfarers.

Until a method of separating the hitchhiking goats from the sheep is discovered, drivers owe it to themselves to ignore the roadside "thumpers".

"Hot Rod" Cars

Reckless youth loves to joy ride. It's smart to have a "hot rod" car, to brag of speeding at 80 or 100 miles and, perhaps, of outdistancing a pursuing police car. The thrill outweighs the risk and many lives have been the forfeit.

In one state's automobile association's recent convention it was revealed that the "hot rod" has become as serious a menace in the East as it has been for some time in the West, and a ban on it was advocated.

Drastic action is necessary if this fad is to be curbed because mechanically inclined youngsters can "soup up" the motor of a jalopy without outside assistance, except for a bit of cylinder head milling work.

In proposing to rule the "hot rod" off the highways, a traffic court judge rebuked parents who set the young a bad example by themselves flaunting traffic regulations. He advocates punishing parents of a "hot rod" driver who tangles with the law, as well as the offender.

World Series

Attention of the nation has been diverted from the tense battling of the political field to equally tense battling on the baseball diamond. It is World Series time again, Dodgers versus Yankees, and people in most walks of life are concentrating on baseball.

Newspapers, television and radio are carrying the games into millions of homes, thus multiplying the watching "crowd."

While interest nationally is not as intense as would be the case were two widely separated teams contesting for the championship, it is the World Series just the same, and baseball remains the national sport despite the inroads made in recent years by football.

If the Yankees take three and the Dodgers three, necessitating a seventh game, interest nationally will be as intense as it would be if Chicago and Philadelphia were the teams involved.

Everyone Bares His Bankbook

By Hal Boyle

HOMETOWN, U. S. A.—Wilbur Peeble, America's average citizen, joined a group reading a notice his boss had just pinned to the office bulletin board.

The notice said: "To all employees: 'The management has been asked whether it plans to start a gift fund to retain high caliber employees who have been offered government jobs at three times their present salary. We don't."

"A statement of the firm's financial position is attached. Attention is directed to the red ink. 'The management also announces that if the employees wish to start a private fund to help the firm meet its expenses their contributions will be gratefully accepted."

Signed: The Boss.

Wilbur shook his head. Later in the morning he sneaked downstairs to get a haircut on company time.

Before attacking with his shears, the barber bowed and handed him a sheet of paper.

"What is this, Tony?" asked Wilbur.

"My profit-and-loss statement for the last 20 years," replied Tony.

"What do I care about that?"

said Wilbur. "I'm tired of hearing the public say barbers are scalping them," said Tony. "You will please note my car is five years old and I am still using the same scissors I started business with. Just can't afford a new pair."

Fascinated, Wilbur studied the figures. After work he dropped into a bar across the street. With his Martini the bartender held out a black notebook.

"My income tax payments for the last five years," he said. "The politicians say they are clean as a hound's tooth—well, I'm cleaner than a toothless hound. You can see no tax payment for 1949. I want to go into that in detail. I worked for my brother that year, and anybody knows when he works for a member of his own family he can't even steal enough to make him owe taxes."

Still later, when he entered his neighborhood grocery store, Wilbur was dazed to see the butcher scribbling like mad.

"The housewives are demanding a complete accounting of my finances," he said. "They even started an ugly rumor that I was curing my lumbago with a mustard plaster made of $100 bills. Come with me, Mr. Peeble. I want you to know the full truth." Wilbur followed him into the back room, where the butcher peeled to the waist. Five $10 bills were bandaged across one kidney.

"You can see how easily things get exaggerated, can't you?" demanded the butcher. Wilbur laughed to himself all the way home.

"The political candidates now have got the voters following their bare-your - bankbook campaigns," he told his wife, and added jokingly:

"When are you going to give a public report on your private fur coat fund."

"I'm glad you brought that up, Wilbur," said Trellis Mae. She went to a vase and shook out a small batch of paper.

"The fund is empty," she said. "But I have 10 of your IOUs totaling $150. What I want to know is what you did with the money. And don't tell me you used it to fight Communism. Are you subsidizing that new blonde stenographer in your office?"

Wilbur's mouth opened and closed like a winded goldfish.

"I deny all," he said. "I will not dignify such baseless accusations with an answer. This trend toward financial nudism has got to stop somewhere, and it is going to stop right here."

But if you think it did—well, you just don't know Trellis Mae.

Red Infiltration Political Issue

By George Sokolsky

Since 1933, when the United States recognized Soviet Russia, the infiltration into our government by Communist agents and emissaries has been a major political issue. There is no hindsight about this: A voluminous, factual attack has been constant since 1917 when the bolsheviks took over Russia.

The year following recognition, the Harold Ware cell (1934) was organized in Washington, consisting of bright young men, mostly from the Harvard law school, whose object it was to gain important positions affecting government policy on behalf of Soviet Russia and international Communism. They found it easy to enter the AAA in the Department of Agriculture, then presided over by Henry Wallace. (I must say, in justice, that when Wallace discovered the nature of this cabal, he booted the gang out of his department.)

Subsequently, this Harold Ware group found its way from the AAA into other government activities, to the National Labor Relations Board, the Treasury, the State Department, etc. Lee Pressman, for instance, wrote the Wagner act, which established the National Labor Relations Board of which Nathan Witt became secretary and practically the head man. Witt's associate in Communist activity, Lee Pressman, became counsel for the newly formed CIO. Pressman and Witt worked together, so that a government agency dealing with labor matters and a national labor union favored by that agency were joined together through the cooperation of two Communists.

The La Follette committee was loaded with members of the Harold Ware cell who served as investigators, researchers and counsel. This committee so slanted an investigation as to provide the Communists with the data they required for their propaganda against American capitalism.

Other members of this group, because of their abilities, such as Alger Hiss, Henry Collins, Harry Dexter White, Charles Kramer, came to the fore and were performance exposed.

The administration cannot claim that it was without data on the subject. It has always had the reports of the FBI, an agency that from the first recognized the Communist menace. Neither President Roosevelt nor President Truman availed himself fully of FBI facilities on this subject. To this must be added the intelligence reports of Army, Navy and State Departments prior to the Marshall-Acheson regime. Finally, there were some written by Communists, others by anti-Communists since 1948.

In 1939, Whittaker Chambers exposed actual espionage to Adolf Berle, who informed Dean Acheson.

son and President Roosevelt of the accusation that Alger Hiss, already a high State Department official, was a Russian spy. Hiss was promoted to higher office subsequent to the accusation and was Roosevelt's Far Eastern expert at Yalta.

On October 28, 1946, Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada came to Washington with the data uncovered at the Canadian spy ring investigation. King gave to President Truman data on the American side of the espionage Nothing happened.

Meanwhile, the House committee on un-American activities, organized in 1938, was month after month providing items which when taken together have produced the pattern of Communist infiltration into the lives of our people.

The "Amerasia" case, involving a vast amount of classified secret documents (over 1700), taken from the files of military intelligence, naval intelligence, Bureau of Censorship, British intelligence, the OSS and the State Department, was one of the most brazen acts of espionage yet developed. On March 11, 1945, the "Amerasia" headquarters were searched and the documents found. Involved were Philip Jaffe, Kate Mitchell, Mark Gayn, John S. Service, Lieut. Andrew Roth and Emmanuel S. Larson.

After Alger Hiss was convicted, it was impossible to disregard the "Amerasia" case. A senatorial committee, headed by Senator Millard Tydings, was appointed to investigate, in particular, charges made by Senator Joe McCarthy on Communist infiltration into the State Department. At first, Senator Tydings seemed to be anxious to do a thorough job. However, political exigencies drove him to the whitewash pail. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. said of the Ty-

Diet and Health Infection Of Mouth Common Complaint

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Many different types of infection can attack the mouth, the most prominent entrance to the body. One of the commonest of these is thrush, an infection that produces white sores. They are usually found on the tongue, the insides of the cheeks, the gums, and the wall of the throat. The infection is caused by a yeast-like fungus called Monilia albicans.

In recent years, the greater use of various antibiotic drugs in the mouth has brought on many new cases of thrush. As I have pointed out in previous columns, these useful drugs not only kill disease germs, but also many bacteria that fight off unwanted growths, such as the Monilia fungi. This is an invitation for the fungi to grow in the mouth and causes thrush.

Increases Saliva

Many times, people taking penicillin develop a peculiar darkened type of tongue, accompanied by a thrush infection. As a rule, the infection also increases the flow of saliva. Sometimes the fungus spreads from the mouth to infect the rectum, reproductive organs, or various parts of the skin.

In the mouth, thrush generally produces characteristic pearly white, curdy flakes on the affected surface. This type of infection is more often seen in infants than older children or adults.

As a rule, the person with thrush is also suffering from some other disease which is weakening the body, and his mouth is not getting the proper hygienic care. The infection may occur in older people as a result of poorly-fitted dentures.

Method of Treatment

Thrush is easily controlled by prompt treatment. The use of certain dyes, such as methylene blue or methyl violet, are very effective in clearing it up. An alcoholic solution of mercuriochrome is also of great help. Usually, the sore is cleansed with a slightly alkaline solution and then painted with a dye. This treatment should be continued for sometime, as it may take several months to eradicate the fungus.

The infection should be treated under the care of a physician, to speed recovery.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. K.: Last year I was immunized against influenza. Do you recommend my taking this immunization again this year?

Answer: Vaccination against influenza is not now in general use. Since there are two types of viruses causing this disease, type A and type B, and in each type there are numerous strains, it is difficult to determine which vaccine would be effective in a particular epidemic.

There is no definite evidence, therefore, that immunization would be of help, unless you are immunized against a particular strain causing the epidemic.

respected, and a man whom I trusted implicitly, has thus turned his back upon the things we thought he stood for."

Taft—"Today we face the greatest threat ever... far greater than Hitler." The threat, he said, was created by "stupidity and pro-Communist sympathies in the State Department." And he said Stevenson "would continue that threat" because he is "hand in glove" with Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The senator emphasized his partisan friends must, like himself, forget their disappointment over his failure to win nomination and support Eisenhower.

"I am glad to assure those who believe in my principles," Taft said, "that if you elect him, you will have government based on the principles in which you believe."

Eisenhower—"False prosperity" exists in this country and "whatever economic gains have been made since 1932 have been due, not to administration ingenuity, but to war or threat of war."

He argued the Democrats couldn't claim credit through economic planning for raising living standards, increasing wages, or doing away with unemployment.

"War, not the Fair Deal, brought about the end to unemployment," he said. "The legacy of war, not the Fair Deal, helped to sustain a high level of economic activity."

Stevenson-Eisenhower "is supporting all the isolationists in the party and asking their support."

He said the results could parallel those of the 1920 campaign when the League of Nations was an issue, and there were "terrible consequences in blood and disaster."

"The new isolationism," Stevenson said, "has put on some new clothes and uses some new words. But it is just as dangerous in 1952 as it was in 1920."

Steel Industry Grows in Canada

Huge New Plants Are Being Erected

By H. D. CRAWFORD

OTTAWA—Steel is transforming Canada into a great industrial nation. Huge new industrial plants are being erected. Steel-producing companies are expanding their furnace capacity this year to turn out additional hundreds of thousands of tons of this metal so vital to peace or war. New iron ore regions are being developed that may one day become major sources of steel for the United States as well as Canada.

One of the most imagination-stirring developments now taking place is the gigantic, around-the-clock airlift of heavy equipment and other freight needed by the thousands of men who are constructing a railroad through a roadless wilderness from Seven Islands on the St. Lawrence River to rich iron ore regions 360 miles northward along the border of Labrador and Quebec.

This is the greatest private-enterprise airlift in history, and the new Quebec, North Shore and Labrador railway is probably the first railroad built by air. By mid-1954, a year earlier than originally planned, the Iron Ore Company of Canada hopes to start hauling iron ore from Labrador-Unionville open-pit mines down the new railroad to the new ore docks now being constructed at Seven Islands.

MORE THAN 6,000 men are working for the Iron Ore company of Canada this year. Some are pushing steel rails as far northward as possible before next winter's snows force suspension. Others are building railway yards and permanent ore docks at Seven Islands. Still others are building hydroelectric plants for towns and mining operations.

Some of the most difficult construction, a 2,250-foot tunnel and a 680-foot bridge across the Moisie River 12 miles north of Seven Islands, has been completed. Crews now laying more than a mile of track a day hope to place 190 to 200 miles of steel rails by the end of the 1952 construction season.

The six Americans and three Canadian companies that compose the Iron Ore Company of Canada are investing some $200 million in this Labrador-Quebec drive for iron ore to feed the hungry steel furnaces of the future.

A townsite for the northern terminus of the railroad has been chosen near Knob Lake, the major airbase. The Burnt creek campsite, originally considered as the probable townsite, was found to be atop a rich iron ore deposit. Careful considerations were given to the water supply and sewage disposal, and about $10 million have been earmarked for building the town.

Fifteen aerial "work horses" are kept constantly busy hauling all kinds of freight northward from the St. Lawrence area to various airstrips that have been bulldozed out of the wilderness. During the first seven months of 1952 they carried as much freight as the 24 million pounds hauled in all of 1951.

Although planes have been hauling freight and business-bound passengers since 1948, the topgrade pilots, whose mileage last year equalled 80 times around the world, have an enviable casualty-free record.

CONSERVATIVE estimates are that 437 million tons of readily available iron ore of high quality can be mined by open-pit methods in regions leased by the Iron Ore Company of Canada. Less conservative estimates raise the potential tons into the billions. Intensive exploration is continuing in Labrador and Quebec.

Newfoundland's Prime Minister Joseph R. Smallwood has recently been trying to interest British firms in developing other regions of Labrador.

From Seven Islands ore docks, the ore can be shipped to east coast or Montreal ports and hauled by rail to steel mills. If the St. Lawrence Seaway is built, ore boats can carry the iron ore directly to existing facilities at Cleveland and other Great Lakes ports. Erie, Pa., is the only eight miles farther from Seven Islands than it is from loading docks for Mesabi range ore in Minnesota.

CANADA has rich iron ore deposits also at Steep Rock mines west of Port Arthur. The Wabana mines on Bell Island, Newfoundland, are believed to have proven reserves of four billion tons of iron ore, some of it under the waters of Conception Bay.

Defense industries are now using large quantities of steel. Substantial increases in Canada's steel requirements are also resulting from expanding production of rolling stock, motor vehicles and electrical machinery and equipment.

Shipbuilding and the construction of numerous new manufacturing plants likewise are increasing the demand for steel. Canada's rapidly gas industries create huge demands for steel and iron products.

Canadians expect that while their steel requirements are increasing constantly, their new steel mill furnaces and facilities will provide the sinews for the booming manufacturing plants that are making Canada an industrial giant, whether the future holds peace or war.

Soviet Amateurs Aid with Radio

Thousands Of Youths Part Of Program

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

MOSCOW — Soviet radio amateurs are as enthusiastic about their hobby as radio amateurs anywhere else in the world.

They have a mass organization which includes hundreds of thousands of children, youths and adults. Thousands of radio amateur "circles" in the USSR assist their members to study that phase of radio techniques in which they are most interested.

They are helped and supported in their work by the Pioneers (the Soviet children's organization), by the Ministry of Communications of the USSR, and by the large organization known as DOSAAF ("The All-Union Voluntary Society for Assistance to the Army, Navy and Fleet").

They have their own magazine called Radio which has a monthly circulation of about 100,000 copies. Radio runs each issue about 60 pages in length and is packed with detailed carefully written articles covering the latest technical developments and circuits in most fields of radio and television work.

EDITIONS OF small, handbooks

ANOTHER TWIN BILL HAS BEEN BOOKED for the Palace Theater for Friday, Saturday and Sunday and both parts of it are full of thrills. One is "The Jungle" (scene above) and the other is "Navajo". Rod Cameron and Cesar Romero take the leading roles in "The Jungle".

"LOST IN ALASKA" (2-B)

BUD ABBOTT AND LOU COSTELLO are coming to the State here again Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, this time in a movie entitled "Lost in Alaska". The above scene from the picture shows the two funnymen "frozen stiff" in the Yukon and heading for the North Pole.

and guides for the assistance of radio amateurs have been published to the extent of 5,000,000 copies in the last few years.

Each year the radio amateurs of the Soviet Union organize an exhibit in Moscow of their latest inventions and work and award a number of prizes to the most outstanding examples of amateur work.

Through individual handiwork makes up a majority of items put on show, many of the best pieces of work represent collective efforts of a large group.

For instance, radio amateurs in the city of Kharkov installed and now operate a television station there. This was the third television station in the USSR.

Other television enthusiasts in Stalinogorsk, a mining center Moscow, organized, built and put into operation a center for rebroadcast of Moscow television programs.

Many collective farms have radio systems providing each home with access to a radio program with the work done by radio amateur's circles.

TELEVISION is inspiring an unusually high percentage of radio amateurs who have been working out new and important developments, such as:

New circuits for television receivers; a new type of collective antenna which can serve up to 200 sets; a new type of television "center" which receives and pipes to greatly simplified amplifier-viewing tube arrangements in up to 200 apartments.

In short-wave communications, many amateurs' circles operate their own transmitters and communicate with other amateurs of the USSR and of other nations.

Boys and girls of school age enter as an extracurricular activity radio circles of the Pioneers. They receive instruction in the construction of simple radio devices. Many of them then go on in later life to make radio either their profession or their hobby.

FDR Brain Trusters Returning

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Governor Stevenson's progressive shift to leftward in the campaign reflects the steadily increasing influence of a select circle of Rooseveltian advisers at Springfield headquarters.

Save for the absence of such practical politicians as James A. Farley and the late Louis Howe, the Stevenson board of strategy is a replica of the council which surrounded the late President before and after he entered the White House. It gives political old-timers the nostalgic feeling that "Here is where I came in twenty years ago."

The brilliant list includes such counselors, ghost writers, economists and fact-finders as "Archie" MacLeish, Robert E. Sherwood, Samuel I. Rosenman, Leon Henderson and Arthur Schlesinger Jr. Heading them is Wilson Wyatt, an original organizer of the Americans for Democratic Action, which was formed to preserve FDR's ideas of government.

INFLUENCE EVIDENT — Their day-by-day impact on the candidate's thinking is evident to old friends of Stevenson. Their cardinal faith is an unshakable belief in the need for a strong, centralized government dedicated to the use of its power on behalf of what they define as "the submerged sector of society."

FDR embraced their philosophy because it fitted in with his grandiose and successful scheme to convert labor, farm, racial and liberal elements of the electorate to the Democratic Party. Their program meant votes.

As a highly literate individual, Stevenson relishes the company, the conversation and the ideas of this coterie of poets, dramatists, professors, economists, planners. Personally and politically, he could never put up with the desecrated-and-dem Missouri pals so congenial to Truman. As Governor, he kept Jake Arvey's Chicago gang at arms' length.

Thus, although moving closer to Truman for political and diplomatic considerations, Adlai and his inner circle constitute a throwback to the Hyde Park squire and his "brain trusters."

NOT IMMUNE — Stevenson's executive family carefully emphasizes that these assistants are merely manual laborers in the vineyard, not policy makers. They point out that he insists on composing his own speeches, even though vivid MacLeish-Sherwood poetry shine through the veneer. They note that the nominee does not use such catch phrases as New Deal and Fair Deal.

Nevertheless, no public man is immune to the influence and ideas of a group with which he associates intimately and constantly. Their suggestions infiltrate into his mind subtly and effectively, as FDR's metamorphosis revealed. He came to accept their proposals so wholeheartedly that it forced a violent break with conservative Democrats.

By Ray Tucker

budgets and taxes. Indeed, he ridicules Eisenhower-Taft hopes that, barring a global war, Federal expenditures can be cut to $60 billion after two years.

SUCCUMBING? — So far Stevenson has not exhibited the Roosevelt or Truman complex against business and industry. It is doubtful if he will succumb on this question. His portfolio of private investments suggests that he appreciates the operations and profits of banks, railroads, oil firms, retail enterprises, etc.

However, he has on his staff a Harvard historian — Professor Schlesinger — whose writings reflect distinct prejudice and hostility toward certain aspects of a capitalistic society.

Christian Unity In Community

First Observance Instituted By God

(Editor's note: This is the eleventh of series of articles on the Worldwide Communion to be written by the ministers and laymen of the churches in Washington C. H. and Fayette County especially for the Record-Herald. Another will appear in the near future.)

By REV. DON McMILLIN
(First Christian Church pastor)

Jesus Christ instituted the Lord's Supper in the upper room in Jerusalem "the same night in which He was betrayed," and said "do this in remembrance of Me."

These same Apostles further guided by the Holy Spirit obeyed this command and placed the Lord's Supper in the very center of the worship in the Jerusalem Church where "they continued steadfastly in the apostles doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers." (Acts 2:42)

In other New Testament churches we note the faithfulness of early Christians around the Lord's Table, in the Lord's House, on the "upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them." The real purpose here of their coming together was for the "breaking of bread."

Paul further tells us (11th chapter of I Cor.) "I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you" conceiving the Lord's Supper and its importance in the Lord's Day worship, and that the real purpose of their coming together in one place was to eat the Lord's Supper and not to feed their physical appetites as they had houses of their own to eat and drink it.

They here had abused the Lord's Supper when they came together and had not rightly made it the real object of their coming together as Paul here enjoined them.

These and many other passages in the New Testament set forth by both precept and example that Jesus Christ designed and placed the Lord's Supper in the very heart and center of His house and that the very purpose of our coming together is to "show forth his death until he comes again" in the breaking of bread and partaking of the cup. "Do this in remembrance of me," is reiterated lest we come together for some other purpose and in some other way.

Jesus is the host since it is His table and His supper and we are the invited guests, as we gather around His table to honor Him. This assembly so gathered with our "Elder Brother" around His table constitutes the family of God, the House of God, commemorating the first day of the week as the Lord's Day, as we thus honor Him as Lord in His own appointed way.

The Lord's Table, the Lord's House and the Lord's Day are inseparable and constitute a fellowship of all God's children around the world.

Many High School Students In County In Essay-Speech Contest

A big event in which all high school students in Fayette County are eligible to take part, is the 1952 soil conservation essay and speech contest. Attractive prizes for winners, are being offered.

Plans for this contest call for a high school soil conservation field day October 8, during which students may make trip to certain specified farms to see actual conservation methods being practiced.

Following this on October 17, all essays completed must be turned into the local school superintendent's office. The city school superintendent's office will receive all entries from high school students of this city and the essays submitted by any of the four county high schools are to go to the school superintendent's office of that high school.

ON OCTOBER 24, the four top essays from each school's entries will be decided upon and will be retained by the city superintendent for the Washington High School and by the county superintendent for all the high schools in the rest of the county.

These essays will then be given to a board of competent judges for final awards.

This is the third year for these contests and promises to be far the largest of any attempted here.

In the past two years only high school students in the county schools participated, but this year, is the first time for entries from the Washington High School also. Last year there were 60 contestants. This year at least 100 are expected to enter.

THESE CONTESTS are sponsored by the Fayette County Farm Bureau, Inc., the Fayette County Soil Conservation District and the Fayette County Extension Service as a public contribution to education in soil conservation.

To give high school students a good idea about possibilities in writing or speaking on conservation subjects in these contests, three men interested in this activity, early last month made trips to the high schools of the county to show a motion picture entitled "Conservation Pays." They were Robert Glass, Ben Glover and W. W. Montgomery.

All high schools in the county have been informed regarding the contests and it is reported, that many students have shown a keen interest in the plans.

Fayette County is the only county in Ohio, it is reported, to have added a speech contest to the essay contest.

The High School Soil Conservation Field Day Tour will include the following farms:

Mr. Frank Sollars: On Snowhill Road west of Bunker-Hill Glendon Road.

Hankins Run: On Bunker-Hill Glendon Road south of the Snowhill Road.

Mr. Thomas Craig: On Robinson Road-second farm north of the B & O Railroad.

Mr. Virgil & Mr. Joe Bryan: On White Road north of Mills Road.

Agronomy Plots: Near Johnson Crossing at Dr. O. W. House farm.

AWARDS TO WINNERS in this county, also in the district and state contests are announced as follows:

COUNTY—The winner of the essay contest and the winner of the speech contest from each High School shall be awarded a one-day expense free trip to places of interest in Ohio by the Fayette County Farm Bureau, Inc. In the event the first place winners do not go on the tour, the second and third place winners are to be successively offered the trip.

Prizes for the speech contest are to be: first, $15; second, $10.

The essay of the county winner will be entered in the district contest.

DISTRICT—Plaque awards will be presented to essay winners in the District Contest.

STATE—For essay winners — Awards are presented by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation as follows: 1st Prize, $200; 2nd Prize, $100; 3rd Prize, $50.

Squid Found In Drain When It Clogged Up

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Mrs. Louise Johnson, 27, of 752 South Main Street was surprised when she pulled a baby squid from a clogged lavatory drain in her home.

Legs of the 10-legged member of the octopus family wound around her finger when she poked it into the drain to investigate.

Dr. John D. Mizelle, professor of zoology at the University of Notre Dame, said local housewives need not fear a similar occurrence.

He said the baby squid was of the edible variety imported from the Mediterranean area. He said they have not been known to survive in fresh water.

John Loudon McAdam is credited with inventing the macadam road.

Illini-Badger Joust Tagged As Top Game

Wisconsin Win Seen
As Sure Ticket To
1953 Rose Bowl

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP)—October's first football Saturday promises some of the heaviest firing of the season to date, but overshadowing them all is a duel between Illinois and Wisconsin which could point the Badgers toward the Rose Bowl.

Illinois went to the Pasadena New Year's Day classic last time and can't repeat under Big 10 Conference rules.

But Wisconsin, rated about on a par with Illinois, can make the trip and a victory Saturday means they've disposed of their biggest obstacle. Not since 1935 has either team beaten the other twice in a row. Illinois won last year and so that leaves it up to Wisconsin.

There is a sparkling intersectional schedule, but nowhere are there such big games as in the Southwest where Texas teams take on five toughies from other areas.

NOTRE DAME tangles with Texas in Austin, Georgia Tech vs. Southern Methodist in Dallas, Kentucky and Texas A & M in College Station, Washington State and Baylor in Waco and Louisiana State meeting Rice in Houston.

Although the accent is on intersectional warfare, the Wisconsin-Illinois affair in Madison isn't the only conference tussle of major importance. Arkansas and Texas Christian tee off in Fort Worth in a Southwest Conference struggle, Colorado and Kansas meet in a Big Seven circuit tilt in Lawrence, and UCLA and Washington battle in Seattle in a Pacific Coast Conference game.

Michigan State, voted the nation's No. 1 team in the first AP poll this week, travels to Portland for a meeting with Oregon State.

The Far West also will see Army's rebuilding Cadets against Southern California in Los Angeles, while Michigan tests Stanford in Palo Alto. The Michigan-Stanford game is this week's national TV offering, beginning at 4:45 p. m.

Another big one between teams from rival areas brings together Tennessee and Duke in Durham, N. C., one of the South's top engagements. California heads into the Middle West to tackle Minnesota in Minneapolis, Santa Clara is at Tulane, Villanova at Detroit, Boston University at Marquette.

VANDERBILT at Northwestern, Pitt at Oklahoma, Texas Tech at College of Pacific, William & Mary at Penn State, Cincinnati at Tulsa and Boston College vs. Wake Forest in Winston-Salem, N. C.

Maryland and Clemson, the two bad boys of the Southern Conference because of accepting forbidden bowl games last year, have an important scrap in College Park, Md.

Two big games Friday night find Alabama in Miami, Fla., and Temple at Syracuse.

Also included on the Saturday program are:

East: Brown at Yale, Rutgers at Princeton, Columbia at Harvard, Dartmouth at Penn, Fordham at Holy Cross, Colgate at Buffalo, Maine at Vermont.

Midwest: Iowa at Indiana, Iowa State at Nebraska, Purdue at Ohio State, Missouri at Kansas State, South Dakota at North Dakota.

Southwest: New Mexico A & M at New Mexico, Houston at Oklahoma A & M.

South: Virginia vs. Virginia Tech at Roanoke, Washington and Lee at George Washington, Citadel vs. Florida at Jacksonville, South Carolina at Furman, Richmond at State.

West: Arizona at Utah, Colorado A & M at Denver, Brigham Young at Montana, Wyoming at Utah State.

SOMETHING new has been added to the American sports scene. It is called Jokari, and is best described as squash-tennis. It only recently has come to America from the Riviera and England. It's a simple game with equipment consisting of two paddles, a center control box, a rubber ball and about 10 feet of rubber cable. Players hit the ball and this keeps up until one misses. Players observe regulation handball scoring of 21. In the photo, Bud Palmer, former star basketball player, and Pauline Betz Addie, former women's tennis champ, try out the new game.

3-Class System In Ohio Urged

COLUMBUS, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The eight-club Sandusky Bay Conference has asked the Ohio High School Athletic Association to set up a three-class system.

They suggest that four-year schools having 225 or more boys be placed in Class A, between 100 and 225 in Class B, and under 100 in Class C.

2:03:4 Time Trial For Times Square

Times Square, 2-year-old pacer owned by Eddie Kirk, of Washington C. H. closed his 1952 racing campaign Thursday morning on the red mile at the Lexington Trots.

Driven by McKinley Kirk, Times Square was given a time trial and completed the mile in 2:03 4/5.

Experts who attended the races Thursday at Lexington said that the strong wind which was blowing all day had a lot to do with the slower times. It is believed that at least two seconds were taken from the time because of the wind.

Dodgers Not Exactly Crying In Their Beer Over Defeat

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, their dreams of a sweep shattered, were not exactly crying in their beers following a 7-1 drubbing at the hands of the New York Yankees in the second game of the 1952 World Series.

Both losing pitcher Carl Erskine and first baseman Gil Hodges, who made a costly error during a five-run flareup in the sixth inning, summed it up "as just one of those days, tomorrow is another day."

The Dodger "Dressen" room, as expected, was like a morgue compared to Wednesday when the Brooks celebrated the winning of their first opening day World Series triumph in six attempts.

Just a short distance away the Yanks were whooping it up in their shower room.

Billy Martin, whose three-run homer in the big sixth off Billy Loes sealed the Dodgers' doom, and big Vic Raschi, were the center of attraction.

MARTIN, WHO suits up in Joe DiMaggio's old locker, didn't think his home was the biggest thrill of his career.

The cocky second baseman said he got a bigger kick out of his game-winning hit in Philadelphia last week that enabled the Yanks to clinch the American League pennant.

"I guess you would have to say the hit in Philadelphia was the greatest thrill."

"I didn't have the least idea of hitting a homer. After all I am perfectly happy just to hit the ball where it can't be caught or stopped," he added.

Raschi, a four-time World Se-ies victor, opened the conversation with, "sure was hot out there."

The big righthander held the Dodgers hitless after yielding three hits and Brooklyn's long run in the third but before that he appeared shaky.

Asked what was wrong when he was in trouble Raschi retorted:

"Me in trouble? All I did was walk three men in one inning, but none of them scored. It's when they score that you're in trouble."

Manager Charley Grimm of the Boston Braves, broke in as an outfielder with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

Mountaineer Field, home of West Virginia University football, was built in 1924 and formally dedicated the next year.

LEBANON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—It was a big night for Indiana Thursday as two Hoosier-owned harness racers flew away from the field in both features at Lebanon Raceway.

Ravel, owned by Jack Larrick of Darlington, Ind., won both ends of the classified trot, zipping over the 9-16-mile first heat in 1:10.3 and over the one-mile second heat in 2:13.2.

Dell Risk, owned and driven by James Sproat of Carlisle, Ind., captured the 20 pace feature in the fifth and eighth races. Sproat's horse dashed the first one-mile heat in 2:9.1 and the second heat of 1:16 miles in 2:17.2.

The fall meet will close Saturday night.

Seven players on the Kansas City Blues were named to the annual American Association All-Star team.

Executed Japs Are Still Heroes

Widows Are Proud Of War Criminals

By FRED SAITO

TOKYO—The widows of four Japanese generals executed by the Allies after the Pacific war say they are still proud of their husbands.

"But my husband deserved death," said Mrs. Hisako Yamashita, as quoted in a story in the magazine Maru.

Her husband was Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who commanded the Japanese forces in the Philippines. He was hanged at Manila Feb. 23, 1946.

"When a professional soldier loses a battle leaving his nation in ruins, he must die," Mrs. Yamashita said.

Mrs. Fujiko Homma, wife of Gen. Maraharu Homma, commander of the Bataan death march, said she is still proud of her husband exactly as she testified at his Manila trial.

Homma was shot April 3, 1946, at Manila following his trial for his part in the death march which took the lives of many Americans and Filipinos who were captured at Bataan and Corregidor.

"I knew my husband was to be killed," Mrs. Homma said. "So I did not beg for his life when I met General MacArthur after returning from Manila."

IN THE MARU magazine story Mrs. Yamashita said she did not go to Manila to testify in behalf of her husband as Mrs. Homma did for hers, because "I knew it was useless."

"It was a trial of the defeated by the winner," Mrs. Yamashita added.

Mrs. Katsuko Tojo, widow of Gen. Hideki Tojo, the wartime Japanese premier who was hanged

Too Low Is Right

BUFFALO—The West Seneca Town Board served notice on Ricio Airport that planes were flying too low over Pearl Street. A father complained to the board that his 10-year-old son had to jump off his bicycle to avoid being struck by one.

The ancient world made extensive use of a mixture of gold and silver which was called electrum.

Police Checking Litter in Gutter

Police have started a check to halt the dumping of sweepings from places of business into the gutters.

Chief Vaiden Long said Friday that prosecution will follow if necessary to end this violation of a city ordinance which makes it an offense to place litter in the streets.

Reports indicate that only a very few places have been following this antiquated method of disposing of sweepings from their places of business.

Recently the health department halted the dumping of scrub water and other foul smelling material in the gutter in front of a place of business.
